For 50 years this master bath had remained untouched until this fall. By applying creative solutions such as the selection of porcelain tile that mimics travertine, a unique tile layout, remnant granite and a prefab counter-top, you would never guess that the clients' budget was extremely tight. Enlarging the shower and doubling its size is the main feature of space.

This vacation home's kitchen was designed as a large open area where friends could gather and be entertained without space constraint. Functional elements (such as glass front cabinets) were designed for visitors' ease. The calm, restful colors and style reflect the desire to make guest feel welcome and comfortable.

The primary design objectives were to create low-maintenance, open space living areas that facilitated entertaining, and to take advantage of the amazing views. Traditional Hill Country materials juxtapose modern furnishing to create a relaxing retreat.

A library in a historic bungalow home was re-imagined with a bold paint selection and resort feel furnishings. The homeowner, from the Carolina coast, wanted a nod to his roots in a gracious and welcoming environment. Overall the space is not only dramatic but also, comfortable, classic and timeless.
